Having seen that his arms were ready for use, he road slowly forward, keeping a careful watch on each side of the road, that he might not be surprised. As long as the woods kept open as they were, he had no fear, as there were no good hiding places for a man. Ere long the woods began to get thicker and more sombre. Little hillocks, covered with bushes, became frequent, until at last they became a long range skirting at each side of the road. The horseman felt that the time which was to try him was near at hand, and he dropped the reins until his hand covered a holster pistol, which he firmly grasped in such a manner as a person would not notice. and he then assumed an air of carelessness, though his watch was now keener than ever. At length he came to a place which he felt contained his enemy. Nature seemed to have adapted this place for the purpose of concealment.
